Wins for university building

Staff Reporter

The landmark Information Services building at the University of Otago has picked up two national property awards.

It won the excellence award for the education and art property sector and the Energy Wise award for excellence in energy efficient building design at the Property Council of New Zealand Rider Hunt Awards announced in Auckland last week.

The $47 million building, which includes the central library, 2200 study spaces and offices, was completed in December 2001.
